AN ELECTRIC CURRENT GOES ASTRAY.

THE FLUID FROM A TROLLEY WIRE SETS FIRE TO THE CORNICE OF A BUILDING.

current of electricity went astray from a troller wire yesterday at Atlantic-ave. and Smith-st., and set fire to the cornice of a building and melted a lead waterpipe, creating much alarm and bringing out sev ing the safety wires stretched above the trolley wires in Atlantic-ave., when the electric current was car ried by a cross wire to a trolley pole close to the iron awning frame in front of the grocery store of George Schnorr, at No. 292 Atlantic-ave. This awning frame, of gaspipe, joins a tin leader running up to the tin roof of the three-story building, and four buildings adjoining are also roofed with tin. Through the roofs of Nos. 298 and 300 project iron ventilat-ing pipes, which run down to the first floor and basement close to the lead waterpipes. The electricity was carried from the post to the awning pipe and then over to the tin leader and roof to the venthe tileting pipes, and thus to the ground. There were sounds like pistol shots on the roofs of the houses as the electricity made its way along them, alarming all the inmates, and the cornice caught fire, while

A fire slarm was rung and the linemen hastened to the spot and cut away the tin leader, thus breaking connection. The blazing cornice was speedily extinguished and the water was cut off until the paper could be repaired. The loss will not exceed

THE WOMEN MAY HAVE COMMITTED SUICIDE. Two colored servant girls were suffocated by gas Putnam ave., yesterday morning. Mrs. Chatfield, who is a wealthy widow, engaged the servants through an employment agency in Norfolk, Va., and they reached Brooklyn by boat on Sunday. They gave the names of Parthenia Reiney and Sarah Thurston. The former said she was married. They were assigned to a small bedroom at the top of the house. On Tues-day evening they went to bed at 11 o'clock and were cautioned to turn off the gas, being shown how to do it. On the preceding nights they had a candle. yesterday a boy called them, but got no answer, and Mrs. Chatfield opened the door of their room and found the two women unconscious in bed, while room was filled with gas from the open burner. was evident that they had turned off the gas and turned it on again. A physician was called, but efforts to resuscitate them were fruitless. The coro-ner will investigate the case. Word was sent to Norfolk to find their relatives if possible.

HE THREW A PAIL OF WATER AT HER. Georgie Dodge, a young woman, living at No. 226 Avenue Police Court against Thomas Wright, of No. 233 Roebling-st., whom she charged with throwing pail of water at her. The evidence developed the fact that for several years Miss Dodge had been in the habit of sweeping the dust in front of her home into the centre of the street. She failed to sprinkle the street before she began to sweep, the result of which was that Mr. Wright's family received the full benefit of the dust.

Pule and agliated, but proud even in his misery, the young man stood before her and looked her aquarely in the eye.

"This is the wreck of all my hopes, Viola Biggers," he said, "the crushing out of all that makes life dealrable. For the last six mouths I have dwelt in a fool's paradise. I have permitted myself to hope that you—but why should I speak of the past! The dream is over. It has been a rude awakening. Henceforth, since you so decree, our paths diverge."

"It is better so, Mr. r'innkett," replied the young woman coldly, "though I would still gladly be your friend."

"What is friendship to a heart that craves for some.

"Where did you read those lines. Mr. Pinnkett?" she interrupted, her cheeks affame and her eyes sparking with interest and excitement.

"I saw them the other day in 'The Weekly Tomahawk,' and they seemed so tender, so true, so expressive of the heart's most sacred—"

"Mr. Pinnkett," said the young woman blushingly, "I wrote that little poem myself and sent it to 'The Tomahawk.' I am glad it pleases you, and—and if

SONGS AND DANCES ON THE ROOF.

A CHILLY EVENING AT THE MADISON SQUARE

The roof garden of the Madison Square Garden gave a cool welcome to the first audience of the season on Tuesday night. It is, no doubt, a delight "to listen to sweet music while sipping cooling beverages," as the managers love to express it, but under certain circumstances it is pretty generally admitted that one may have too much of a good thing. There were accordingly a few persons on the roof who would have said, had they spoken from their hearts, that they should prefer hot Scotch to green mint with cracked ice. Also it is well in summer to be fanned by fresh breezes while listening to exicel inusic"-another formula quoted from the nanagers-but one does not care to have one's hat blown off as a part of the enjoyment of a roof garden. Yet though at this elevation above Madison ave., a disheartened manager might sigh "the spring comes on the chilling gale of delights in the middle city after the weather really does grow hot was most obvious and most cheering. The roof garden is indeed cold in proportion to the weather below it, and it is agrecable to think that it will still be cold in proportion when the mercury reaches 90 degrees.

the stage. Mile. Fraulein Marie von Baegger gave some amusing German songs, and Horace Randall some amusing German songs, and Horace Kandan some Irish ones. The Muhlemann Swiss Mountainer Trio sang in an altogether agreeable way, and Ruby Brocks pleased his hearers much with his banjo solos. The orchestra, directed by Gustave d'Aquin, alayed numerous selections. The temperature was a fittle hotter last night though still a trifle cool, but the fault will rapidly correct itself.

"THE PRESS" NOT MORTGAGED

It was reported yesterday that the stockholders of The New-York Press" Company (Limited), had given their consent to the board of directors placing a mortgage for $200,000 on the property of the compahy. It was said that the consent was signed by James Phillips, jr., George West and James A. Dowdge. Mr. Phillips denied the report last evening, and said that it was due entirely to a misunderstanding. At the last meeting of the directors, Mr. Dowdge, treasurer of the company, asked the privilege of raising $200,000 by issuing bonds whenever it might deemed advisable to raise money quickly, as for the purchase of real estate, etc. The request was not made for the purpose of mortgaging the property, but for the purpose of avoiding delays. The corporation laws of this state require a public record to be made of all such acts. The report that the property had been mortgaged was evidently due to a misunderstanding of the records.

Go abroad or stay at home, your suit is here, yours to have the minute you want it. On the whole Tweed is about the best for travelers; cool, easy, and don't show dirt so much,

We sell all things that travelers wear, with trunks and bags of the good sorts to put 'em in. Our "fibre" trunk is so good that the maker won't tell us what it is made of, or we'd tell you; but isn't it enough to know that your money is yours just as much in our hands as in your own.

The "Needful Outfit for a Tourist"-a little book that tells what not to get and what you must have-soap, for in tance; but we don't keep soap. The book is free.
